CEPR is the leading global platform for dissemination of excellent economic research and relevant policy output to the research and policy communities and the informed global public.

CEPR’s research is carried out under the auspices of eleven Programme Areas, each with a range of activities, including an annual symposium and research projects. The programme areas are:

- Development Economics
- Economic History
- Financial Economics
- Industrial Organization
- International Macroeconomics and Finance
- International Trade and Regional Economics
- Labour Economics
- Macroeconomics and Growth
- Monetary Economics and Fluctuations
- Organizational Economics
- Public Economics
- Political Economy

Further thematic research is also conducted within a framework of Research and Policy Networks, which build communities of researchers around topics of high policy relevance and where academic research and collaboration with policymakers can have a high impact.

To date we have launched ten RPNs:

- Central Bank Communication (led by Michael McMahon)
- Climate Change (led by Christian Gollier)
- Competition Policy (led by Gregory S. Crawford)
- European Economic Architecture (led by Jan-Pieter Krahnen, Philippe Martin and Lucrezia Reichlin)
- Fintech and Digital Currencies (led by Antonio Fatás)
- Populism (led by Sergei Guriev)
- Preventing Conflict: Policies for Peace (led by Dominic Rohner)
- Rising Asia (led by Kees Koedijk)
- Spatial Disparities and Policy (led by Tony Venables)
- Sustainable Finance (led by Dirk Schoenmaker)
Since 1984 CEPR has played a key role in establishing the scientific excellence and policy relevance of economics in Europe and beyond.

We are a community of over 1600 top researchers. Each year we sponsor more than 200 academic conferences and workshops all over the world, and we own the globally leading platform for disseminating quality economic research and policy publications. On CEPR’s policy portal, VoxEU.org, we have an audience of over 7 million views per year.

CEPR has a mandate to engage in policy. It has a series of renowned products that are at the leading edge of economic policy debates; in particular, the Geneva Reports, Barcelona Reports, the Policy Insights series, eBooks, and VoxEU columns.

We are constantly growing. In 2020 we published over 1200 CEPR Discussion Papers and our network and influence grows ever larger. We are also expanding geographically, in January 2019 we opened our first regional office in Brussels, and we plan to open an office in Paris in Autumn 2021.

CEPR is the premier European and global Thinknet.
Beatrice Weder di Mauro

President of CEPR, Distinguished Fellow at the Emerging Markets Institute of INSEAD, Professor of International Economics at the Graduate Institute in Geneva

Beatrice has been CEPR President since July 2018. She previously held the Chair for International Economics at the University of Mainz, and has held visiting positions at Harvard University, the International Monetary Fund, the United Nations University in Tokyo and INSEAD in Singapore. She is a member of the boards of Bosch and Unigestion.

Sir Charles Bean

Chairman of CEPR and Professor of Economics at LSE, he is currently the Economy Expert on the Budget Responsibility Committee of the UK Office for Budget Responsibility

From 2000 to 2014, Charles served at the Bank of England as, successively, Executive Director, Chief Economist and then Deputy Governor for Monetary Policy. He was President of the Royal Economic Society from 2013 to 2015 and was knighted in 2014 for services to monetary policy and central banking.

Richard Baldwin

Editor-in-Chief of CEPR’s policy portal VoxEU.org, Professor of International Economics at the Graduate Institute in Geneva

Richard was President of CEPR from 2014 to 2018, a Visiting Research Professor at the University of Oxford, Visiting Professor at MIT Economics Department, and an Associate Professor at Columbia University Business School. He founded VoxEU in 2007.
PROMOTING RESEARCH EXCELLENCE WITH POLICY RELEVANCE

We will:

• foster the premier European academic network in economics; to produce and disseminate excellent economic research

• promote economic research that is relevant and accessible by bringing together top academics and practitioners

• lead the debate on European economic architecture and develop special research projects and thematic networks, such as:
  • Central Bank Communication
  • Climate Change
  • Competition Policy
  • European Economic Architecture
  • Fintech and Digital Currencies
  • Preventing Conflict: Policies for Peace
  • Populism
  • Rising Asia
  • Spatial Disparities and Policy
  • Sustainable Finance

• expand our research focus and network in Asia

• identify and promote exceptional young talent within our research base

• broaden our network of members and supporters
CEPR RESEARCHERS IN EUROPE

CEPR is the premier European network of leading researchers in economics.

Its researchers have played a pivotal role in the European economic integration process and continue to be on the cutting edge of the debate on reforming European economic architecture. Moreover, 2020 has demonstrated that the CEPR network is extremely powerful in responding to a crisis. We continue to use this strength to help rebuild and recover.
CEPR's research network includes academic researchers as well as practitioners and policymakers. We are proud to be working with a diverse group of policymakers including:

Luc Laeven
Director-General of the Directorate General Research, European Central Bank; CEPR Research Fellow

Beata Javorcik
Chief Economist, EBRD; Professor of Economics, University of Oxford; CEPR Programme Director for International Trade and Regional Economics

NOBEL LAUREATES

CEPR has six Nobel Laureates among its researchers:

Professor of Economics, Nobel Laureate, and CEPR Research Fellow

Paul Krugman was awarded the 2008 Nobel Memorial Prize in Economic Sciences for his contributions to New Trade Theory and New Economic Geography. He is a CEPR Research Fellow in International Trade and Regional Economics. He is Distinguished Professor in the Graduate Center Economics Ph.D. programme and Distinguished Scholar at the Stone Center on Socio-Economic Inequality at the Graduate Centre of the City University of New York.

Regius Professor of Economics, Nobel Laureate, and CEPR Research Fellow

Christopher Pissarides was awarded the 2010 Nobel Memorial Prize in Economic Sciences jointly with Peter A. Diamond and Dale Mortensen for their analysis of markets with theory of search frictions. He is a CEPR Research Fellow in the Monetary Economics and Fluctuations programme. He is the Regius Professor of Economics at the London School of Economics and Political Science.

Director of the Toulouse School of Economics and of the Jean-Jacques Laffont Foundation, Nobel Laureate, and CEPR Research Fellow

Jean Tirole was awarded the 2014 Nobel Memorial Prize in Economic Sciences for his analysis of market power and regulation. He is a CEPR Research Fellow in Public Economics, Financial Economics and Industrial Organization. He is Director of the Toulouse School of Economics and of the Jean-Jacques Laffont Foundation. He is also affiliated with CERAS in Paris and MIT.
Abhijit Banerjee was awarded the 2019 Nobel Memorial Prize in Economic Sciences jointly with Esther Duflo and Michael Kremer for their experimental approach to alleviating global poverty. He is the Ford Foundation International Professor of Economics at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Cofounder and Director of the Poverty Action Lab and a CEPR Research Fellow in Development Economics.

Esther Duflo was awarded the 2019 Nobel Memorial Prize in Economic Sciences jointly with Abhijit Banerjee and Michael Kremer for their experimental approach to alleviating global poverty. She was the Co-Director of the CEPR Development Economics programme from its inception in 2006 until 2015. She is the Abdul Latif Jameel Professor of Poverty Alleviation and Development Economics in the Department of Economics at MIT and is a Co-founder and Director of the Poverty Action Lab.

Michael Kremer was awarded the 2019 Nobel Memorial Prize in Economic Sciences jointly with Esther Duflo and Abhijit Banerjee for their experimental approach to alleviating global poverty. He is the Gates Professor of Developing Societies in the Department of Economics at Harvard University; a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences; and a recipient of both a MacArthur Fellowship and a Presidential Faculty Fellowship. He is a CEPR Research Fellow in Development Economics.
Covid Economics, Vetted and Real-Time Papers (https://cepr.org/content/covid-economics), launched in March 2020, is a free online CEPR publication. It was created to quickly disseminate fast-rising scholarly work on the Covid-19 epidemic. Alongside VoxEU, which presents short analyses on the epidemic and other economic issues, Covid Economics features more formal investigations, based on explicit theory and/or empirical evidence. Covid Economics is special in three respects; it presents research in real time; the papers are vetted by Editors for quality and relevance; the articles are pre-prints, meaning that authors, who retain copyright, may later submit to established reviews.

Reports (www.cepr.org/content/reports)
- It’s All in the Mix: How Monetary and Fiscal Policies Can Work or Fail Together by Elga Bartsch, Agnès Bénassy-Quéré, Giancarlo Corsetti, Xavier Debrun.
- Resilience of the Financial System to Natural Disasters by Patrick Bolton, Marcin Kacperczyk, Harrison Hong and Xavier Vives, the third in a series of CEPR/IESE reports on the ‘Future of Banking’.
VoxEU.org – CEPR’s policy portal – was set up in June 2007 in the midst of the financial crisis, when the need for the analysis of what was happening and what should happen was prescient. It promotes research-based policy analysis and commentary by leading economists.

VoxEU has a very large audience, with 8.6 million unique sessions each year, 12 million pageviews, and 6 million users, numbers which consistently grow annually.

VoxEU readers include a vast range of government officials, private-sector economists, elite business and media professionals, and academics, as well as students of economics. This wide-ranging audience ensures that the world’s best policy-relevant economists are keen to write for VoxEU.

VoxEU columns cover all fields of economics broadly defined. We are constantly introducing new innovations: videos, podcasts, and most recently a Blogs & Reviews section, which gathers together blog posts and book reviews from leading economists around the world.

VoxEU’s most popular column ‘A tale of two depressions: What do the new data tell us?’ by Barry Eichengreen and Kevin O’Rourke has had over 1 million reads to date.
CEPR is formalising its efforts to improve female representation in the economic profession with the creation of the Women in Economics Initiative.

Led by CEPR’s Vice-President, Hélène Rey, this initiative aims to redress gender imbalances in the economics profession, partnering with CEPR member organisations to promote women within the field.

Since 2019, CEPR has been working in partnership with UBS to celebrate contributions of women in economics, with a series of portraits and video interviews on a dedicated website. This programme shines a light on quality research and policymaking from female leaders in their field.

Leading economists are part of CEPR’s global network

“CEPR has made a tremendous difference to European economic research and the way it is conducted”
Axel A. Weber, Chairman of the Board, UBS AG
CEPR has had a pivotal impact on economic policy going back four decades. Ideas and evidence from CEPR policy research have been influential on many topics, most recently in 2020 when the global pandemic shut down normal life as we knew it. The CEPR network rose to the challenge of helping to fight this unprecedented global crisis, and CEPR and VoxEU became the central meeting point for the production and dissemination of immediate and essential research on Covid-19.

The Centre’s close relationship with central banks – in Europe and around the world – is an important factor in its impact on policy. Almost all Eurozone central banks and the Bank of England are CEPR institutional members, as are the central banks of Canada, Hungary, Iceland, Israel, Mexico, Norway, Romania, Russia, the Federal Reserve banks of San Francisco and St. Louis, Sweden, Switzerland, and Turkey. The Centre collaborates actively with policymakers and researchers from these central banks, holding many conferences annually. It also supports cooperation among central-bank economists, for example with the Euro Area Business Cycle Network. The CEPR’s Euro Area Business Cycle Dating Committee (the European equivalent to the NBER’s Business Cycle Dating Committee) establishes the dates of Eurozone recessions.

Our private-sector Institutional Members also play a key role in helping CEPR disseminate policy-relevant research to decision makers in financial and non-financial corporations. They regularly host CEPR workshops, conferences and public discussion meetings.

CEPR engages directly with policymakers through the Institutional Memberships of government agencies. These include Japan’s Research Institute of Economy, Trade and Industry (RIETI), IMF, European Commission, OECD, the Department for International Trade and the Bank for International Settlements.

“CEPR has made an important contribution to the international policy debate in recent years ... This role will be even more important over the next decade.”

Lawrence H. Summers,
Former President of Harvard University and Former Secretary of the Treasury
