WHO WE ARE

CEPR is the leading global platform for dissemination of excellent economic research and relevant policy output to the research and policy communities and the informed global public.

CEPR’s research is carried out under the auspices of 13 Programme Areas, each with a range of activities, including an annual symposium and research projects. The programme areas are:

- Asset Pricing (led by Anna Pavlova)
- Banking and Corporate Finance (led by Elena Carletti)
- Development Economics (led by Eliana La Ferrara)
- Economic History (led by Rui Esteves)
- Industrial Organization (led by Pierre Dubois)
- International Macroeconomics and Finance (led by Silvana Tenreyro)
- International Trade and Regional Economics (led by Beata Javorcik)
- Labour Economics (led by Barbara Petrongolo)
- Macroeconomics and Growth (led by Nicola Fuchs-Schündeln)
- Monetary Economics and Fluctuations (led by Refet Gürkaynak)
- Organizational Economics (led by Andrea Prat)
- Public Economics (led by Johannes Spinnewijn)
- Political Economy (led by Helios Herrera)

Further thematic research is also conducted within a framework of Research and Policy Networks (RPNs), which build communities of researchers around topics of high policy relevance and where academic research and collaboration with policymakers can have an amplified impact.

We currently have thirteen RPNs:

- Central Bank Communication (led by Michael McMahon)
- Climate Change (led by Christian Gollier)
- Competition Policy (led by Tommaso Valletti)
- European Economic Policy (led by Giancarlo Corsetti)
- European Financial Architecture (led by Elena Carletti and Jan Pieter Krahnen)
- Fintech and Digital Currencies (led by Dirk Niepelt)
- Household Finance (led by Michael Haliassos)
- Inequality and the Role of firms (led by Mark Stabile)
- International Lending and Sovereign Debt (led by Christoph Trebesch)
- Media Plurality (led by Julia Cagé)
- Preventing Conflict: Policies for Peace (led by Dominic Rohner)
- Spatial Disparities and Policy (led by Helen Simpson)
- Sustainable Finance (led by Dirk Schoenmaker)
CEPR IN FRANCE

The Centre for Economic Policy Research was established in London in 1983 to ‘promote and advance education for the public benefit in the efficient functioning of the national and international economy by conducting and promoting studies and research into open economies and the relations between them’. On 1 October 2021, thanks to a consortium of our French partners, we established an Association in France, with offices on boulevard Saint-Germain in Paris. The Paris expansion is transformative for CEPR: we now have additional funding for our activities and are increasing the number and range of CEPR’s Research and Policy Networks, flagship Policy Reports, Policy Insights, and eBooks, and can also expand CEPR’s dissemination platforms.

DISSEMINATION EVENTS

CEPR dissemination events enable the results of new research, alongside their implications for policy, to be presented to a wider, non-specialist audience and they are often hosted by CEPR member organisations. We held a dissemination meeting to launch the Macroeconomic Policies for Wartime Ukraine report in Paris in September 2022, and then organised a launch of the Paris Report on the Reconstruction of Ukraine, hosted by the Council of Europe Development Bank. In April 2023, co-hosted with Generali, we held a dissemination meeting for the second LTI Report: The Role of Institutional Investors as Responsible Investors. We envisage holding more of these events in Paris in future.
PARIS SYMPOSIUM

This week-long event brings together the CEPR community of distinguished fellows, research fellows, affiliates, and associates from Research Policy Networks and other CEPR initiatives. Each RPN/initiative gets the opportunity to plan a section of the programme, allowing for participants to attend multiple sessions across these sections and create an interdisciplinary environment. The meetings are of clear interest to policymakers, given CEPR’s focus on policy-relevant research. In addition, public dissemination events and policy panels on related topics of interest are also scheduled throughout the event, so that a wider audience can be engaged.

We organised our first Paris Symposium in June 2022, and the next one is planned for 8-14 December 2023.

PARIS REPORT

CEPR’s Geneva Reports on the World Economy have formed the blueprint for other reports on seminal topics. Given the success of this series, we have now initiated an annual Paris Report, the first of which, on Rebuilding Ukraine, was edited by Yuriy Gorodnichenko, Ilona Sologub and Beatrice Weder di Mauro and was published in December 2022. The focus of the 2023 report will be on geopolitics and will be edited by Beatrice Weder di Mauro, Jean Pisani-Ferry and Jeromin Zettelmeyer. Future reports may emanate from the Paris-based RPNs, for example a Paris Report on Climate Change or on European Economic Architecture.
Since 1984 CEPR has played a key role in establishing the scientific excellence and policy relevance of economics in Europe and beyond. We are a community of over 1,700 top researchers. Each year we sponsor more than 250 academic conferences and workshops all over the world, and we own the globally leading platform for disseminating quality economic research and policy publications: on CEPR’s policy portal, VoxEU.org, we have an audience of over 7.5 million views per year.

CEPR has a mandate to engage in policy. It has a series of renowned products at the leading edge of economic policy debates; in particular, the Geneva Reports, Paris Reports, Barcelona Reports, the Policy Insights series, eBooks, and VoxEU columns.

We are constantly growing. In 2021, we published over 1,200 CEPR Discussion Papers and our network and influence have grown even larger as we have expanded geographically - in October 2021, supported by a consortium of French partners, we opened our office in Paris. In June 2022, we organised our first CEPR Symposium at SciencesPo in Paris that brought together leading voices in European and global economics.

CEPR is the premier European and global Thinknet.
ACADEMIC LEADERSHIP

PROMOTING RESEARCH EXCELLENCE WITH POLICY RELEVANCE

We will:

• foster the premier European academic network in economics, to produce and disseminate excellent economic research

• promote economic research that is relevant and accessible, through bringing together top academics and practitioners

• lead the debate on European economic architecture and develop special research projects and thematic networks, such as:
  • Central Bank Communication
  • Climate Change
  • Competition Policy
  • European Economic Policy
  • European Financial Architecture
  • Fintech and Digital Currencies
  • Household Finance
  • Inequality & the Role of Firms
  • International Lending and Sovereign Debt
  • Media Plurality
  • Preventing Conflict: Policies for Peace
  • Spatial Disparities and Policy
  • Sustainable Finance

• identify and promote exceptional young talent within our research base

• broaden our network of members and supporters
CEPR is the premier European network of leading researchers in economics.

Its researchers have played a pivotal role in the European economic integration process and continue to be on the cutting edge of the debate on reforming European economic architecture. Moreover, the pandemic, and more recently our work on the reconstruction of Ukraine, have demonstrated that the CEPR network is extremely powerful in responding to a crisis. We continue to use this strength to help rebuild and recover.
CEPR’s research network includes academic researchers as well as practitioners and policymakers. We are proud to be working with a diverse group of policymakers including:

Luc Laeven
Director-General of the Directorate General Research, European Central Bank; CEPR Research Fellow

Signe Krogstrup
Governor of Danmarks Nationalbank and CEPR Research Fellow

Luc Laeven
Director-General of the Directorate General Research, European Central Bank; CEPR Research Fellow

Beata Javorcik
Chief Economist, EBRD; Professor of Economics, University of Oxford; CEPR Programme Director for International Trade and Regional Economics

Philip Lane
Chief Economist, European Central Bank; Whately Professor of Political Economy, Trinity College Dublin (on leave); CEPR Research Fellow

Laurence Boone

He is the Gates Professor of Developing Societies in the Department of Economics at Harvard University; a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences; and a recipient of both a MacArthur Fellowship and a Presidential Faculty Fellowship. He is a CEPR Research Fellow in Development Economics.
Rapid Response Economics is a CEPR publication series designed to publish research on major policy issues with the utmost speed. The first eBook of this series, A Blueprint for the Reconstruction of Ukraine, was published in April 2022 in response to the ongoing war in Ukraine. Within a period as short as two weeks, the collective of authors put together an overview of a possible reconstruction project in Ukraine. This book represents a starting point which has led into a broader project, encompassing further and more detailed analysis and more publications, such as Macroeconomic Policies for Wartime Ukraine, published in August 2022.

eBooks

Our latest eBooks:

- The Role of Institutional Investors as Responsible Investors by Philipp Krueger and Rajna Gibson Brandon.
- Barcelona 5: The International Economic and Financial Order After the Pandemic and War by Jeromin Zettelmeyer, Barry Eichengreen, Xavier Vives and Giancarlo Corsetti.
VoxEU

VoxEU - CEPR’s policy portal - was set up in June 2007, in the midst of the financial crisis, when the need for an analysis of what was happening and what should happen was prescient. It promotes research-based policy analysis and commentary by leading economists.

VoxEU has an impressive audience, with 7.5 million+ pageviews each year and 6 million users, numbers which consistently grow annually.

VoxEU readers include a vast range of government officials, private-sector economists, elite business and media professionals, and academics, as well as students of economics. This wide-ranging audience ensures that the world’s best policy-relevant economists are keen to write for VoxEU.

VoxEU columns cover all fields of economics broadly defined. We are constantly introducing new innovations: videos, podcasts, and most recently a Blogs & Reviews section, which gathers together blog posts and book reviews from leading economists around the world.

VoxEU’s most popular column ‘A tale of two depressions: What do the new data tell us?’, by Barry Eichengreen and Kevin O’Rourke, has had over 1 million reads to date.
On February 24, 2022, Russia invaded Ukraine. We find ourselves faced with an unspeakable tragedy, a major war right in Europe. The end of this conflict is not in sight and the outcome is uncertain. At a time when we were hoping to focus on efforts to battle climate change and its consequences, we have had to shift our attention to the consequences of an armed conflict. CEPR has again mobilised its network of researchers and launched a series of efforts focused on Ukraine.

Shortly after the outbreak of the war, our collective of authors put together an overview of a possible reconstruction project in Ukraine: ‘A Blueprint for the Reconstruction of Ukraine’, which formed the first issue of a new ‘Rapid Response Economics’ series.

In September 2022, we launched the second Rapid Response Economics issue ‘Macroeconomic Policies for Wartime Ukraine’, in Paris. The eBook establishes a series of macroeconomic recommendations to put the Ukrainian economy on a sustainable trajectory for the duration of the war. The public dissemination event in Paris was followed by a two-day workshop that presented early versions of CEPR’s Paris Report on the Reconstruction of Ukraine.

This in turn has led into a broader project encompassing further and more detailed analysis, including a debate on our policy portal VoxEU.org on the economic consequences of the war, moderated by Yuriy Gorodnichenko and Dominic Rohner. The debate encourages evidence-based and analytical contributions, focusing on a variety of dimensions linked to all fields of economics, such as re-thinking energy policy, global food production, and inflation and monetary policy.
CEPR has formalised its efforts to improve female representation in the economic profession with the creation of the CEPR Women in Economics Initiative. Led by CEPR’s Vice-President, Hélène Rey, this initiative aims to redress gender imbalances in the economic profession, partnering with CEPR member organisations to promote women within the field.

WE_ARE Series

In 2020, CEPR launched a new virtual seminar series, WE_ARE - Women in Economics: Advancing Research in Economics, where junior women present their work and get constructive feedback from their peers and from senior economists. The seminar series aims to bring together junior and senior women in economics and to contribute to building an active and cooperative CEPR Women in Economics community. The seminar series is now in its third season.

WE_ARE and WinE

In 2021, WE_ARE joined forces with WinE, the EEA Standing Committee on Women in Economics, whose objective is to support women in the economics profession by facilitating the formation of networks, by circulating information on, or relevant to, female economists, and by providing a forum for discussion of issues relevant to women in economics. WE_ARE and WinE have introduced a series of special sessions offering useful advice and tools for junior women in the profession.

Women in Economics: Advancing Research in Economics Internationally

In 2021, CEPR introduced WE_ARE_IN - Women in Economics: Advancing Research in Economics Internationally. It brings together two initiatives, based in Europe and the United States respectively: CEPR’s WE_ARE Seminar Series and WiM, an annual conference, organised with support of the Becker Friedman Institute, that features the work of Women in Macro and creates opportunities to strengthen their research and expand their networks. The 2022 WE_ARE_IN Macroeconomics and Finance Conference took place in Basel and was organised in collaboration with the ECB and BIS, and the 2023 conference will be hosted by the Sveriges Riksbank.

Christine Lagarde,
President of the European Central Bank
CEPR has had a pivotal impact on economic policy, going back four decades. Ideas and evidence from CEPR policy research have been influential on many topics. Just as in previous years, when CEPR and VoxEU became the central meeting point for the production and dissemination of immediate research on Covid-19 crisis, the CEPR network mobilised again in 2022 in response to the invasion of Ukraine. In 2022, CEPR researchers produced two rapid response eBooks that discuss the reconstruction project for Ukraine and outline macroeconomic policies to put the economy of the Ukraine on a sustainable trajectory for the duration of the war.

The Centre’s close relationship with central banks – in Europe and around the world – is an important factor in its impact on policy. Almost all Eurozone central banks and the Bank of England are CEPR institutional members, as are the central banks of Canada, Hungary, Iceland, Israel, Mexico, Norway, Romania, the Federal Reserve banks of San Francisco and St. Louis, Sweden, Switzerland, and Turkey. The Centre collaborates actively with policymakers and researchers from these central banks, holding many conferences annually. It also supports cooperation among central-bank economists, for example with the Euro Area Business Cycle Network. The CEPR’s Euro Area Business Cycle Dating Committee (the European equivalent to the NBER’s Business Cycle Dating Committee) establishes the dates of Eurozone recessions.
IMPACT AND INFLUENCE

Our private-sector Institutional Members also play a key role in helping CEPR disseminate policy-relevant research to decision makers in financial and non-financial corporations. They regularly host CEPR workshops, conferences and public discussion meetings. CEPR engages directly with policymakers through the Institutional Memberships of government agencies. These include Japan’s Research Institute of Economy, Trade and Industry (RIETI), IMF, European Commission, OECD, the UK Department for International Trade and the Bank for International Settlements.

“CEPR has made an important contribution to the international policy debate in recent years ... This role will be even more important over the next decade.”

Lawrence H. Summers,
Former President of Harvard University and Former Secretary of the Treasury
